

A little about the Cornish

The Cornish language is called Kernewek.

Cornwall is called Kernow.

Dyth da: Good day

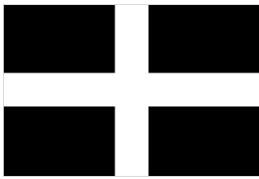

da: good

Da also is a name for Dad.

Mamm: mum

Kernow Bys Vyken! Cornwall forever!

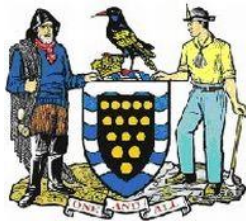

Dew genes: Goodbye

The Cornish Flag of a white cross on black background is attributed to St Piran, a 5th century abbot, with maybe with some allusion to the black ore and the white metal of tin in the mines.

The Arms of the Duke of Cornwall: The 15 besants (gold coins) on a shield with the motto 'One and All'. It represents the ransom raised in Cornwall for the Duke of Cornwall, captured by the Saracens during the Crusades.

The Cornish Coat of Arms. A mariner and a miner stand opposite each other to show the main industries of fish, tin, and copper.

The national bird is the chough (palores)

Many favour the Cornish heath (Erica vagans) as the national flower.

The sessile oak is the national tree and called the Cornish oak.

The national dish is the pasty.

Cornish Identity

<http://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2014/apr/26/survival-of-cornish-identity-cornwall-separate-place>

In 2014 Cornwall was recognised as a national Celtic minority group like Ireland, Scotland and Wales.